NOTES ON THE PRIVACY ACT

The Privacy Act, which was enacted in 1974, provides that no agency of the Federal government shall release any information from a person's file without the express written consent of the individual whose records are involved. This law, therefore, prohibits unauthorized disclosure. It is essential that the individual requesting assistance submit their personal signature. The form below, once signed and returned, will enable me to write an agency on your behalf and to receive an answer. Please include social security, veterans or pertinent file numbers. If you have additional comments regarding your case, please feel free to include them on the back of this page.
